A Post Secondary Opportunity

Approximately 126,000 First Nations people in Canada over the age of 25 have no grade 12 or no post-secondary education.

In Manitoba that works out to approximately 30,000 people

- Since 2006, First Nations have increased certification in trades and college while the gap in university attainment persists.

- In 2016, First Nations peoples have higher attainment rates than non-Indigenous Canadians in college and the trades.

- Nearly half (47%) of Indigenous post-secondary graduates have completed a college diploma (34% of non-Indigenous people).
